Abstract

This essay raises more questions than it answers. In first draft, which we have only moderately revised, it was written about two decades ago and has been circulating in manuscript since then. (References to recent literature have, however, been added.) It was not published previously because we raised so many questions that we did not know how to answer; we hoped to eventually solve the problems and publish. The time has come to cut bait. With the publication of a new journal of human network studies, we offer our initial soundings and unsolved questions to the community of researchers which is now forming in this field. While a great deal of work has been done on some of these questions during the past 20 years, we do not feel that the basic problems have been adequately resolved.

A forma de comunicar Ciência muda ao longo dos anos.

As preocupações, presões, e forma de atribuir/ganhar reputação são diferentes

Abstract

The world continues to face an ongoing viral pandemic that presents a serious threat to human health. The virus underlying the COVID-19 disease, SARS-CoV-2, has caused over 3.2 million confirmed cases and 220,000 deaths between January and April 2020. Although the last pandemic of respiratory disease of viral origin swept the globe only a decade ago, the way science operates and responds to current events has experienced a paradigm shift in the interim. The scientific community has responded rapidly to the COVID-19 pandemic, releasing over 16,000 COVID-19 related scientific articles within 4 months of the first confirmed case, of which at least 6,000 were hosted by preprint servers. We focused our analysis on bioRxiv and medRxiv, two growing preprint servers for biomedical research, investigating the attributes of

Predatory journals: no definition, no defence

Leading scholars and publishers from ten countries have agreed a definition of predatory publishing that can protect scholarship. It took 12 hours of discussion, 18 questions and 3 rounds to reach.
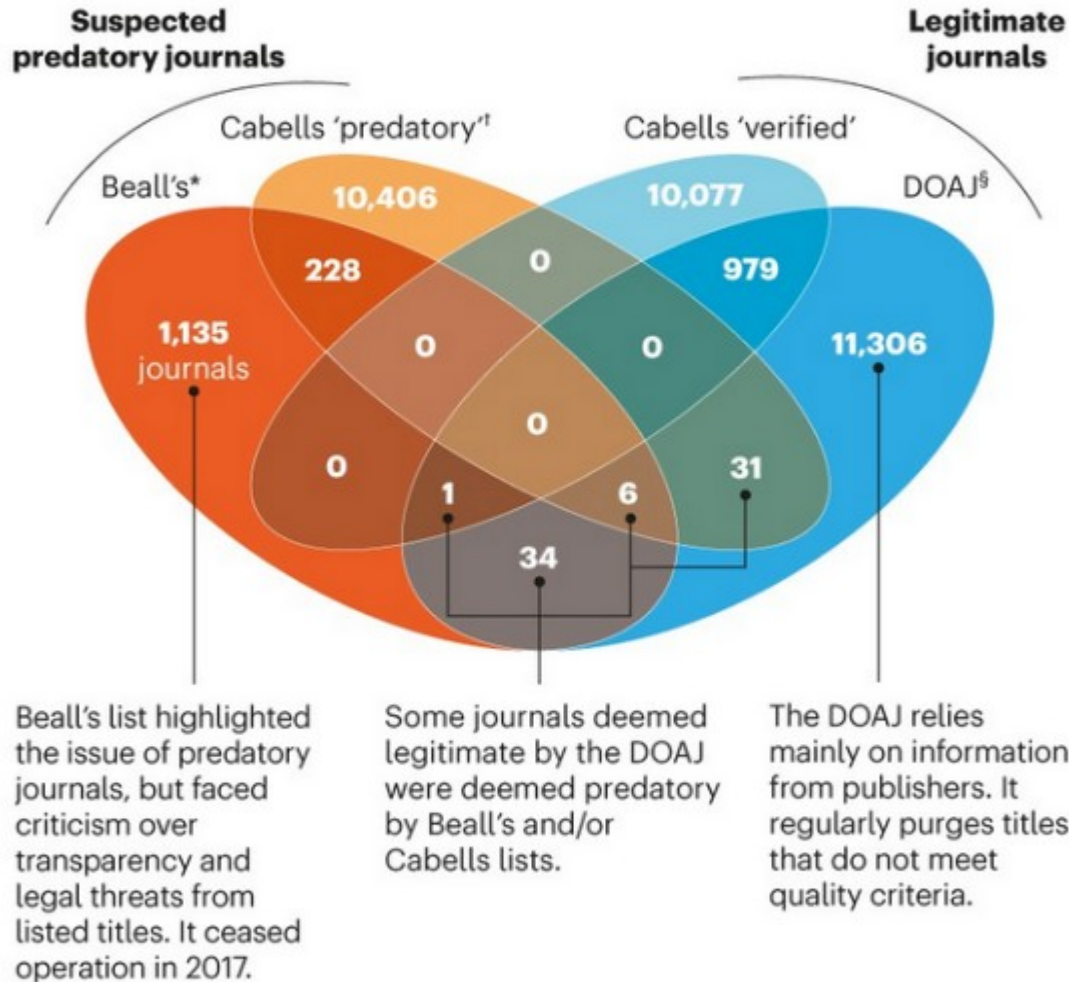

Agnes Grudniewicz ✉, David Moher ✉, Kelly D. Cobey ✉, Gregory L. Bryson, Samantha Cukier, Kristiann Allen, Clare Ardern, Lesley Balcom, Tiago Barros, Monica Berger, Jairo Buitrago Ciro, Lucia Cugusi, Michael R. Donaldson, Matthias Egger, Ian D. Khan, Mahlubi Mabizela, Andrea Manca, Katrin Milzow, Johann Mouton, Marvelous Muchenje, Tom Olijhoek, Alexander Ommaya, Bhushan Patwardhan, Deborah Poff, Laurie Proulx, Marc Rodger, Anna Severin, Michaela Strinzel, Mauro Sylos-Labini, Robyn Tamblyn, Marthie van Niekerk, Jelte M. Wicherts & Manoj M. Lalu

The definition

The consensus definition reached was: "Predatory journals and publishers are entities that prioritize self-interest at the expense of scholarship and are characterized by false or misleading information, deviation from best editorial and publication practices, a lack of transparency, and/or the use of aggressive and indiscriminate solicitation practices."

NO LIST TO RULE THEM ALL

Assessments of which journals are likely to be predatory or legitimate do not tally, and titles can appear in both categories. There is no way to know which journals were considered for a list but left off, or which were not considered.

Beall's list highlighted the issue of predatory journals, but faced criticism over transparency and legal threats from listed titles. It ceased operation in 2017.

Some journals deemed legitimate by the DOAJ were deemed predatory by Beall's and/or Cabells lists.

The DOAJ relies mainly on information from publishers. It regularly purges titles that do not meet quality criteria.

A revista é de fluxo contínuo para recebimento e publicação dos artigos, portanto, assim que os artigos são formatados e diagramados, estarão disponíveis online.

Em função do corte de recursos para a pesquisa nos últimos anos, a revista não possui apoio financeiro público. Assim, optou-se em solicitar a contribuição financeira de R$ 490,00 por artigo a ser publicado, destinada aos custos de diagramação, formatação, registro do DOI e manutenção da revista, contribuição a qual deve ser feita por meio de depósito bancário ou Paypal (cartão de crédito).

Aceitando o convite, basta responder este e-mail informando o interesse e o tipo de pagamento escolhido. As demais informações serão enviadas na sequência. Não há necessidade de formatar o artigo, a revista possui editores responsáveis para este fim. A revista é de fluxo contínuo para recebimento e publicação dos artigos, portanto, assim que os artigos são formatados e diagramados, estarão disponíveis online.

Em caso de dúvidas, estamos à disposição pelos telefones: (41) 3534-7401 ou (41) 99591-3404 (trabalhamos com WhatsApp neste número) – em função da pandemia de COVID-19, excepcionalmente, durante a quarentena, estamos atendendo apenas pelo telefone celular e WhatsApp.
